The Welch house is a two-story, 3 bay, frame building with a steep A-roof running east-west. A 1 1/2 story, one room, kitchen wing adjoins the east end of the house. The main roof has no dormers but the kitchen roof has one on either side. The house is one room deep, having a single massive chimney at its west end. The exterior, brick stack serves both the first and the second floor. The west face of the chimney contains a random pattern of glazed headers and stretchers. The kitchen has an interior chimney, covered with plaster above the roof-line. The weatherboarding on both parts of the house has been covered with asphalt shingle. The present roof is metal. The windows have 6/6 pane sashes except those on the first floor (front) which are 9/6, and the gable-end openings which are 4/2 at the attic level and 4/4 below. The interior plan has a side-hall entrance and stair and a single large room. There is a cellar, with an outside entrance, under the main house.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE
Having a prominent location on a hilltop above Bristol, this house has belonged to the Welch family at least since the 1840's. The 1860<sup>1</sup> and 1878<sup>2</sup> county maps show Henry C. Welch and Enoch Owens Welch as the respective owners. There is mention in a local history of nearby Bristol Landing that the post-office, established in Bristol in 1840, was located near land owned by Henry C. Welch.<sup>3</sup> Members of the Welch family say that the house was once a funeral parlor and the home of the undertaker at Bristol.<sup>4</sup> The house has been occupied by tenants for a number of years and its maintenance has been neglected. It is now beginning to deteriorate.
